Part One – A History of Youth Service Bureaus in Connecticut

The Connecticut Youth Services Association, (CYSA) is the professional organization that serves as the collective voice of the Connecticut Youth Service Bureau system, and is dedicated to promoting quality services for Connecticut's children, youth, and families. CYSA is governed and staffed by an all volunteer Board of Directors with representatives from each geographic region of the State. CYSA representatives serve on multiple statewide coalitions, commissions, and task forces, some of which are appointed by State Leaders and Agency Heads. CYSA is actively involved with conducting professional development training for its members. The Association also plays an important role through its Advocacy Committee supporting key legislative efforts that promote laws that benefit the social and emotional well being of children and youth. CYSA is currently working with multiple state agencies on a wide range of program initiatives including, but not limited to: the State Department of Education, Judicial Branch Court Support Services Division, Department of Children and Families, Chief State's Attorney's Office, Office of Policy and Management, Department of Mental Health and Addiction Services.

The formation of Youth Service Bureaus, (YSBs) in Connecticut dates back to the 1970's. Today there are 99 YSBs serving 147 cities and towns in Connecticut. Most YSBs are municipal departments while a small number are set up as private non-profit organizations. Typically these community-based "Bureaus" focus on the provision of human services. Most YSBs in Connecticut perform a combination of administrative functions, involving research, evaluation, planning, and coordination of programs as well as the provision of community based direct services. Services provided by rural, suburban, and urban Youth Service Bureaus include:

Youth Development: Adventure-Based Activities/Ropes Courses; After-School Programs; Anger Management Groups; Community Service; Leadership Programs; Mentoring; Peer Programs; Substance-Free Alternative Activities; Summer Recreation Programs; Teen Centers; Theatre Troupes; Truancy/Drop-out/Violence/Substance Abuse Prevention Programs; Wellness Programs; Youth/Adult Partnership Programs; Youth Employment and Job Training;

Family Involvement: Information and Referral; Parent/Child Therapeutic Playgroups; Parent Support Groups; Parent Workshops;

Mental Health Services: Case Management; Child & Family Counseling; Crisis Intervention; Host Homes; Information & Referral; Support Groups;

Child Welfare: Family Reunification; Information & Referral; Social Service Activities; Supervised Visitation; Therapeutic Playgroups; Holiday Giving;

Teen Pregnancy Prevention: Counseling; Education; Positive Youth Development Programs; Support Groups;

Community Outreach: Cultural Activities; Family Events; Field Trips; Holiday Festivals; Intergenerational Activities;

Juvenile Justice: Alternative Sanction Programs; Court Advocacy; Court-Ordered Community Service; Detention/Suspension/Expulsion Prevention & Intervention Programs; Diversion Programs; Truancy Prevention/Intervention Programs and Juvenile Review Boards.

YSB's are statutorily defined in CT General Statutes, sec. 10-19m-p that states in part... "A Youth Service Bureau shall be the coordinating unit of community-based services to provide the comprehensive delivery of prevention, intervention, treatment and follow-up services." In the last five years, YSBs have experienced growing support through program partnerships with SDE, CSSD, and DCF. Three recent examples of emerging partnerships include the LIST initiative with CSSD and DCF, the RBA project with SDE and a JRB pilot project with CSSD.

Part Two

Emergence of Juvenile Review Boards

Diverting Children and Youth from the Juvenile Justice System

Dating back to the 1970's Youth Service Bureaus by law have provided services for some of Connecticut's most at-risk children and adolescents through the provision of a specific set of services. Juvenile Review Boards operate within the core language of state law 10-19m.

That statute provides:

Youth Service Bureaus responsibilities are as follows: (a) For the purposes of this section, "youth" shall mean a person from birth to eighteen years of age. Any one or more municipalities or any one or more private youth serving organizations, designated to act as agents of one or more municipalities, may establish a multipurpose youth service bureau for the purposes of evaluation, planning, coordination and implementation of services, including prevention and intervention programs for delinquent, pre-delinquent, pregnant, parenting and troubled youth referred to such bureau by schools, police, juvenile courts, adult courts, local youth-serving agencies, parents and self-referrals. A youth service bureau shall be the coordinating unit of community-based services to provide comprehensive delivery of prevention, intervention, treatment and follow-up services. (b) A youth service bureau established pursuant to subsection (a) of this section may provide, but shall not be limited to the delivery of, the following services: (1) Individual and group counseling; (2) parent training and family therapy; (3) work placement and employment counseling; (4) alternative and special educational opportunities; (5) recreational and youth enrichment programs; (6) outreach programs to insure participation and planning by the entire community for the development of regional and community-based youth services; (7) preventive programs, including youth pregnancy, youth suicide, violence, alcohol and drug prevention; and (8) programs that develop positive youth involvement. Such services shall be designed to meet the needs of youth by the diversion of troubled youth from the justice system as well as by the provision of opportunities for all youth to function as responsible members of their communities.

History of Juvenile Review Boards

Most Connecticut's Youth Service Bureaus coordinate juvenile justice diversion services including, but not limited to Juvenile Review Boards. Recently a growing number of YSBs have joined the ranks of those who had years earlier established Juvenile Review Boards, (JRBs). The JRB model has been a part of the YSB community for more than 40 years, with the oldest being the Enfield YSB. All Juvenile Review Boards play a critical role as a "service bridge" among families, police departments, school systems, juvenile court, human service departments, mental health delivery systems, and the Department of Children and Families. The earliest Juvenile Review Boards in Connecticut were directly associated with the language contained in state statute coinciding with the creation of community based Youth Service Bureaus (YSBs) offering diversion alternatives for at-risk youth. YSBs historically have created or partnered with other support systems to assist children and families as part of the diversion process based on the unique needs and/or resources of each community.

Part Three
2011 Study on Juvenile Review Boards

In December 2011 the Connecticut Youth Services Association, (CYSA) conducted a third Annual YSB Juvenile Justice Survey to inventory the status of YSBs that either: a) fund, b) administer, or c) support Juvenile Review Boards in their respective communities. The following data reflects the work of 81 out of 91 agencies that are members of the Connecticut Youth Services Association. In Connecticut there are 99 YSBs, of which 91 are members in good standing of the Connecticut Youth Services Association. The 81 YSBs represent an 89% participation rate for this survey, representing 129 municipalities. The information gathered in this study utilized the Nfocus data collection system known as KidTrax®. The study was also conducted to establish a current baseline of Youth Service Bureaus in Connecticut that presently have or are considering establishing in the future local Juvenile Review Boards. The data was collected during a two week period in December 2011 via an online survey that was sent to the 91 member agencies that comprise the Connecticut Youth Services Association.

The 81 Youth Service Bureaus that participated in the survey, included:

*Manchester YSB offers an alternative JRB program.

Note: In 2007 CYSA conducted a similar study of YSB Juvenile Review Boards. In that study the YSBs for the Towns of Ansonia, Bloomfield, Canton, and Old Saybrook all reported having community based Juvenile Review Boards at that time. Data for the 2011 study was not available for these communities. An internet search conducted on 12/26/2011 found that each of the four YSBs publicized JRB programs, which brings the actual current total of JRBs to 61.

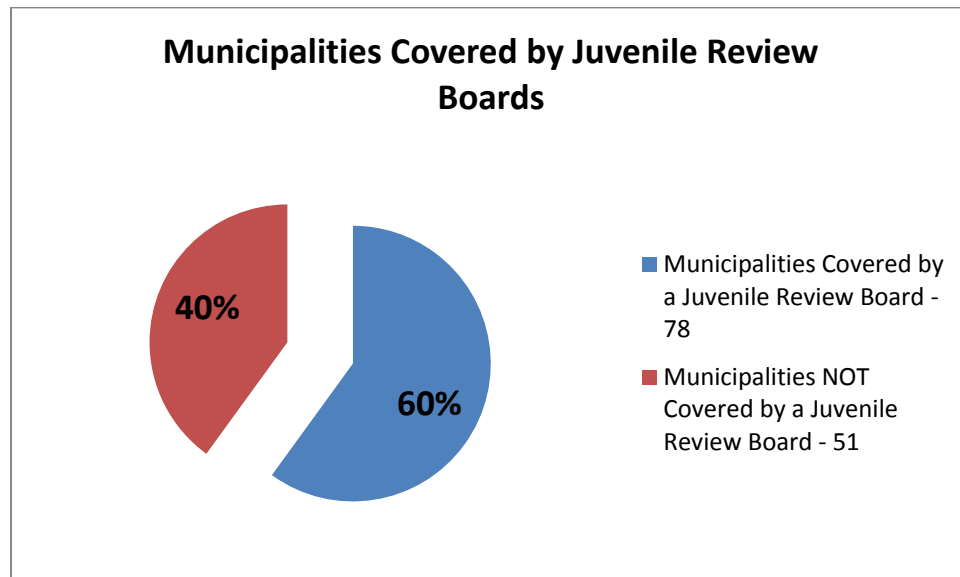

Youth Service Bureau Participation in Juvenile Review Boards

Data reflects the 81 Youth Service Bureaus that responded to the survey.

The 57 Youth Services Bureaus that participated in this survey with working Juvenile Review Boards serve the following 78 towns and cities:

Andover	Avon	Botsford	Branford	Bristol
Byram	Chester	Clinton	Colchester	Columbia
Cos Cob	Coventry	Deep River	Derby	Dodgingtown
Durham	East Hartford	East Haven	East Haddam	Ellington
Enfield	Essex	Farmington	Glenville	Granby
Greenwich	Guilford	Haddam	Hamden	Hartford
Hebron	Killingworth	Lyme	Madison	Manchester

Unionville	Vernon	Windham	Windsor Locks	Windsor
Willimantic	Wethersfield	Waterford

Data reflects the 81 Youth Service Bureaus that responded to the survey.

The following administrative or direct service roles of the 57 Youth Service Bureaus that currently operate Juvenile Review Boards, included:

Administrator of the Juvenile Review Board	45/57	79.0%
Case Manager of the Juvenile Review Board	46/57	81%
Member of the Juvenile Review Board	50/57	88%

The following types of police referrals are accepted by the 57 Youth Service Bureaus that currently operate Juvenile Review Boards in Connecticut.

Children (16 years old or younger) diverted by a police officer for Juvenile Criminal Behavior.	57/57	100%
Children (16 years old or younger) diverted by a police officer for any non-school related status (non-criminal) offense as defined by Connecticut General Statutes and referred to as a Families With Service Needs offense.	42/57	74%
Youth (17 years old) diverted by a police officer for running away from home as defined by Connecticut General Statutes and referred to as a Youth In Crisis offense.	24/57	43%
Youth (17 years old) diverted by a police officer for being beyond the control of their parent.	23/57	41%

The following types of school referrals are accepted by the 57 Youth Service Bureaus that currently operate Juvenile Review Boards in Connecticut.

Children (16 years old or younger) diverted by a School District for truancy as defined by Connecticut General Statutes and referred to as a Families With Service Needs offense.	32/57	57%
Children (16 years old or younger) diverted by a School District for defiance of school rules as defined by Connecticut General Statutes and referred to as a Families With Service Needs offense.	37/57	65%
Youths (17 years old) diverted by a School District for truancy as defined by Connecticut General Statutes and referred to as a Youth In Crisis offense.	25/57	44%

NOTE: If more JRBs were able to accept FWSN defiant of school rules cases, that conduct could be referred to the JRB rather than resulting in a delinquency arrest.

The following types of parent referrals are accepted by the 57 Youth Service Bureaus that currently operate Juvenile Review Boards in Connecticut.

Children (16 years old or younger) referred by a parent or guardian for running away from home as defined by Connecticut General Statutes and referred to as a Families With Service Needs offense.	24/57	43%
Children (16 years old or younger) referred by a parent or guardian for being beyond their control as defined by Connecticut General Statutes and referred to as a Families With Service Needs offense.	25/57	44%

 Woodbridge Youth Services, (Bethany, Orange, and Woodbridge)

The Connecticut Youth Services Association wanted to assess where future Juvenile Justice Grants could best serve YSBs with Juvenile Review Boards. Below is a list of responses that reflect the most productive areas of assistance that CYSA could provide to help YSBs serve additional children and youth through the Juvenile Review Board.

Funding to hire a new JRB Case Manager or increase the hours devoted to JRB duties for an existing JRB Case Manager	43/57
Flex Funding to help families going through the JRB to be able to access mental health services, (evaluation, treatment)	55/57
Flex Funding to help families going through the JRB to be able to access positive youth development programs	52/57
Access to high quality specialized training, (mental health and juvenile justice) for staff at no cost or low cost.	38/57
Funding and technical assistance to develop a uniform system for collecting data on JRB cases.	32/57

The Connecticut Youth Services Association wanted to assess if there were any other missing resources or gaps in service support that would be beneficial in local Youth Service Bureau efforts to serve additional children and youth through Juvenile Review Boards. The following is a list that reflects gaps and missing resource.

- Specialized training for police officers
- Funding for youth to participate in recreational activities.
- Flex funds to include transportation or needs of the family to attend parent education training, access to mental health services
- Use funds designated to FSCs for JRB cases.
- Ask OPM to reinforce the JRB concept when working with police officers.
- Ask SDE to train school administrators on the JRB concept.
- Finding a way to encourage State Police statewide to support the JRB concept.
- Increase community service options statewide.
- Funding for long term data tracking of cases.
- Access to timely psychiatric evaluations for JRB participants
- Funding for special services for victims, included but not limited to professional mediation clinics, support and advocacy groups, and trauma related services.
- Deliver a balanced and restorative justice approach by building capacity to systematically deliver service learning opportunities for JRB youth participants. Additionally, access youth and family mediation for cases that would benefit from this service.

For the last four years the Connecticut Youth Services Association has worked tirelessly on multiple efforts to secure a web-based data tracking system for Youth Service Bureaus. CYSA member agencies have also engaged in multiple pilot projects involving data collection and RBA. This last question in the 2011 JRB Survey asked YSBs if they currently utilize a computer based data collection system to track JRB cases. The following responses were provided.

- KidTrax© was identified as the source of data collection by 7 YSB's. An additional 46 YSBs are currently part of a unified grant proposal via the private philanthropic community.
- Other methods that YSBs currently utilize for data tracking include "home grown" Excel spreadsheets developed independently from one YSB to another.
- "Hartford Connects" was identified as the data tracking system for the Hartford YSB.
- The remaining YSBs reported a data collection range from records maintained manually, to utilizing SDE YSB forms as the primary source of data collection, to maintaining records based on systems created by individual bureaus to sharing of data collection responsibilities for JRBs with local police departments that have greater access to data tracking technology.

Collaborative JRB Technical Assistance and Support:

CYSA and Chief States Attorney's Office provide legal and technical assistance for the startup and ongoing operation of Juvenile Review Boards. Technical assistance, much of which is available on the CYSA website, includes:

- Legal interpretation of state statutes;
- JRB policies, procedures and best practices;
- Co-ordination of annual statewide training;
- Individual municipal training for YSBs, police departments and schools;
- Development of applicable forms;
- Collaborating with other governmental agencies regarding the JRB concept;
- Participation in coordinating and implementing pilot projects (ex. DCF Wilderness School and CSSD Court Referral Project).

Note: By state statute every YSB is responsible for collecting data for services provided to Connecticut residents. Between 2010 - 2011 the State Department of Education, CYSA, and Charter Oak Group partnered on a project to initiate an RBA reporting pilot system. Until a permanent system is available to all Youth Services Bureaus the consolidated efforts of the three institutions have created an Excel format system to report statistics. The KidTrax© system currently being proposed through private philanthropic support would provide a comprehensive data management system to track clientele, services, referrals, and outcome measurements of children and youth served by Youth Service Bureaus that are part of a consortium of members in the Connecticut Youth Services Association.
