

Anything that comes from or has to do with the military has no place with state or local police. This includes military vehicles, support equipment, guns, uniforms and military style training. The United States Constitution forbids the use of the military against civilians, and I believe that anything that originates from the military is a violation of the constitution.

Gerald Tichy

Oxford, Connecticut