Justice Research Center's Role

- Conduct a process evaluation of the Family Support Center (FSC) Project
- Conduct an outcome evaluation of the FSC Project
- Develop an interactive, online database to store project evaluation data
- Provide training to FSC staff on program documentation and data collection procedures
- Report on outputs, outcomes and policy recommendations to CT Judicial Branch.

Why Evaluate?

- To further evidence-based practices in Connecticut's Judicial Branch by determining whether the FSC Project effectively achieves its intended goals
- To identify any potential gaps in treatment implementation reducing the overall effectiveness of the FSC model
- Evaluation is therefore critical to both:
 - Determining the effectiveness of the FSC Project model, and
 - Determining the effectiveness of the implementation of the project

How Do We Evaluate?

- Document the implementation of the Family Support Center Project through a process evaluation
- Conduct an outcome evaluation of outputs and outcomes to determine whether the FSC Project achieved its intended effects of:
 - Eliminating FWSN violators in detention,
 - Reducing judicial FWSN petitions,
 - Reducing FWSN violations, and
 - Reducing subsequent delinquency among youth served by the FWSN Project.

Work Plan

- Develop an online information system for data gathering
- Perform a process evaluation of the development and implementation of the Family Support Center (FSC) component of the FWSN Project
- Perform an outcome evaluation that will document the results and relative success of the FSC Project
